

Plant Seeds for Growth . . .

Communities with greater control over their agricultural production can better ensure the nutritional well-being of its members. Agricultural projects also provide new income-generating opportunities.

School Garden and Farm Projects

Work with a school to plan and assist in the development of a sustainable school farm/garden that can provide essential nutritional value to students and virtually limitless opportunities for teaching and learning.

Community Garden and Farm Projects

Assist community members with the planning and creation of a community garden that will provide food, income, and leadership opportunities for the locale.

Local Agriculture Programs

Support the efforts of local farmers through programs that encourage organic, sustainable, and efficient farming systems. Work alongside farming co-ops that seek to improve the socio-economic standard of it's members through sound business and farming practices.
