

Health programs are coordinated with local officials to address medical concerns specific to the locale or region. Real change in people's lives is dependent upon a safe, healthy environment.

Youth Health and Hygiene Programs

Work with community members to provide fun and active programs and camps for youth that promote good health by introducing important health and nutrition topics in the context of sport and recreation.

Rural Health Clinics

Provide much-needed medical care at primary care clinics for prevention or treatment of illness and disease.

Mothers' Workshops

Work with young mothers to encourage healthy lifestyles relevant to existing nutritional resources and financial capacity.

Sexual Health and HIV/AIDS Education

Work with programs that decrease the spread of HIV through prevention education. Promote sexual and reproductive health through education on topics such as condom usage, way to diagnosis STIs, where to receive treatment, self-esteem building workshops, information about abusive relationships, and pap smears and breast exams.
